Tips & Tricks

The week we will cover On-Course Bunker Care and Etiquette.

- Enter and Exit from the Low Side - When possible, enter and exit the bunker from the low side to minimize damage to the bunker face and reduce the amount of raking required.
- Rake as You Go - After playing your shot, rake the area where you stood, where you entered, and any other disturbed sand. A few extra seconds of attention can leave the bunker in great condition for the next player.
- Place the Rake Properly - After use, return the rake to its designated location and position it according to club standards. Proper rake placement helps course maintenance and prevents interference with play.
- Be Efficient - One player can begin raking while another is preparing for their shot or heading to the next shot. Being mindful of pace of play keeps the group moving without sacrificing course care.
- Leave It Better Than You Found It - If you notice an unraked footprint or disturbed area near where you played, take a moment to smooth it out. Small acts of courtesy go a long way toward maintaining great course conditions for everyone. A well-raked bunker should have a smooth, consistent surface—not deep grooves or ridges. Think "smooth and level" rather than "perfectly groomed."
